polaris

My happiest memory
of you
glimmers blisters
like
firefly solstice desert lightning
like
persied firmament blackhole gravity
like
moonlight lullabies unsung lamentations

We were freedom	I lay awake weightless avalanching	sweating ephialtes sleeping under stars	dea tacita in the back of a rusted pickup willing your mouth to spill gasoline and sunscreen	hot coals of comfort lining my fear	He isn't here phosphorescent

I'd never seen you stand so tall your back
the mast
I roped my sail to

But you closed your

flickering tongue and

I watched the sky

for signs of

smoke
